Rice is the beginning.

BAP! is a modern Korean restaurant built around one idea: rice is not a side note — it is where the meal starts.

The identity should be bold enough to recognise from the street, and warm enough to belong around a table.

bap — cooked rice. Also, in Korean, simply: a meal.

Bold

Big shapes, flat colour, one loud word. Seen from across the street.

Warm

Peach, steam, hands and shared bowls. A place to sit down and stay.

Rice first

Rice leads every menu, every layout, every message.

Short. Loud. Warm.

BAP! talks like the person at the counter: quick, friendly, a little cheeky.

- 1 Lead with the rice. Start with the food, not the brand.
- 2 One idea, one line. If it needs a second sentence, it needs cutting.
- 3 One ! per message. It is part of our name — do not spend it.

One voice. Two signatures.

Primary • with rice bowl

The default. Use it whenever there is room — signage, menus, packaging, website header.

Secondary • lettering only

For tight or very wide spaces — receipts, chopstick sleeves, banners, small UI.

Give it room to breathe.

x = the height of the rice bowl. Keep at least one x free on every side of the full signature. Nothing — text, edges, other graphics — enters this zone.

Use colour in blocks.

Big fields of red and peach, not many small accents. Brown and white keep text, photos and long information legible.

Rough guide to proportion — a menu may be almost all peach, a shopfront almost all red.

Readability — what each pairing can do

Aa Peach on red 3.1 : 1 Large text & logo only	Aa Red on peach 3.1 : 1 Large text & logo only	Aa Brown on peach 10.8 : 1 Any text, any size
Aa Brown on white 15.4 : 1 Any text, any size	Aa White on red 4.4 : 1 Large or bold text only	Aa Red on brown 3.5 : 1 Large text & logo only Contrast ratios calculated to WCAG 2.x. Body text needs 4.5 : 1; large text (24 px / 18 pt, or 19 px / 14 pt bold) needs 3 : 1. Never set peach on white (1.4 : 1).

The bowl. The grain. The !

Three shapes already inside the logo can grow into patterns, crops, dividers and stickers — without ever touching the logo itself.

- Flat colour, no gradients.
- Crop big, repeat loosely.
- One pattern per layout.

Close. Hot. Human.

Appetite and atmosphere over perfection. It should look lived-in and warm, never clinically staged.

Steam

Shoot it hot, straight from the pass. Let steam catch the light.

Texture

Get close: grains, sauce, sesame, the glaze. Fill the frame.

Hands

Chopsticks, spoons, someone mid-bite. Real people, not models.

Table

Shared bowls, side dishes, elbows. A table that is being used.

Light & colour. Warm, natural, slightly golden. Avoid cold blue whites and heavy filters.

Logo on photos. Put the logo in a corner on a solid red or peach block — never straight over busy food.

Crops. Crop tight and let bowls, hands and steam leave the frame.

The word "BAP!" is written in a large, bold, white, hand-drawn style font. The letters are thick and slightly irregular, with a casual, energetic feel. The exclamation mark is also large and matches the style of the letters. The text is centered on a solid red background.

RICE FIRST. ALWAYS.
